

NUMBER CXLI.

	Page.
ART. XXV.—On the Variability of Personal Equation in Transit Observations; by WILLIAM A. ROGERS,-----	297
XXVI.—Upon the Atomic Volumes of the Elements; by FRANK WIGGLESWORTH CLARKE,-----	308
XXVII.—Contributions from the Laboratory of the Lawrence Scientific School. No. 7.—On some Minerals from Newlin Township, Chester Co., Penn., described by Dr. Isaac Lea; by S. P. SHARPLES,-----	319
XXVIII.—On the Washing of Precipitates; by R. BUNSEN,	321
XXIX.—Note upon the origin of the Phosphatic Formation; by C. U. SHEPARD, Sr.,-----	338
XXX.—A Point in the Geology of Western Vermont; by the Rev. J. B. PERRY,-----	341
XXXI.—On some derivatives of Trichlormethyl-sulphonchlorid, (CCl <sub>3</sub> )SO <sub>2</sub> Cl; by O. LOEW,-----	350
XXXII.—Note on the structure of the Blastoidea; by E. BILLINGS,-----	353
XXXIII.—Notes on the occurrence and composition of the Nodular Phosphates of South Carolina; by CHARLES U. SHEPARD, Jr.-----	354
XXXIV.—Notes on American Fossiliferous Strata; by T. A. CONRAD,-----	358
XXXV.—On certain Phenomena of Transmitted and Diffrused Light; by M. CAREY LEA,-----	364
XXXVI.—Process for determining the Carbon chemically combined with Iron; by Prof. EGGERTZ,-----	374
XXXVII.—Geographical Notices; by D. C. GILMAN,-----	377
XXXVIII.—The Cohahuila Meteoric Irons of 1868, Mexico; by J. LAWRENCE SMITH,-----	383
XXXIX.—Atomic Ratio; by JOSIAH P. COOKE, Jr.,-----	386
XL.—Notice of some New Reptilian Remains from the Cretaceous of Brazil; by Prof. O. C. MARSH,-----	390
XLI.—Notices of papers in Physiological Chemistry—No. II; by GEORGE F. BARKER,-----	393
XLII.—Meteors of November 14th, 1868; by H. A. NEWTON,	399

	Page.
XLIII.—A proposed Arrangement for Observing the Corona, and Searching for intra-Mercurial Planets during a Total Eclipse of the Sun; by SIMON NEWCOMB, -----	413

SCIENTIFIC INTELLIGENCE.

Physics and Chemistry.—On the refrangibility of the brilliant yellow ray of the sun's atmosphere, 415.—On the presence of the vapor of water in the neighborhood of the solar spots and on the spectral study of certain stars, 416.—Spectral observations of the star R in Gemini, SECCHI: On absorption lines produced by the passage of the solar light through chlorine, MORREN: On hydrogen in its relation to palladium, GRAHAM, 417.—Production of an artificial spectrum with a single Fraunhofer's line: On the analysis of different varieties of carbon, BERTHELOT, 418.—On the direct synthesis of Cyanhydric acid, BERTHELOT: On the Ammonium amalgam, LANDOLT, 420.—On a new method for preparing Carbonylic Sulphid, BERTHELOT: On Carbonylic Sulphid, BENDER, 422.—On carbonylic chlorid, and a new compound of this substance with platinum, SCHÜTZENBERGER, 423.—On the relation between boiling point and constitution of hydrocarbons, SCHORLEMMER, 424.—On a new source of octylic Alcohol, 425.—Tertiary (propylic) alcohol produced by fermentation: On the reduction of acetic oxyd to ethylic alcohol: On the alcohol obtained by the saponification of castor oil, 426.—On Sulpho-carbamid, 428.

Geology.—On a Mineral Phosphate from the island of Redonda, W. I.; by CHARLES UPHAM SHEPARD, 428.—Final Report on the Geology of New Jersey; by GEO. H. COOK, 430.

Zoology.—Are Unios sensitive to light? by ISAAC LEA, 430.

Miscellaneous Scientific Intelligence.—On the use of sodium in explosive powders, Dr. H. FLECK, 431.—Decrease in the Production of Gold, BLAKE, 432.—Dana's System of Mineralogy, 433.—Obituary.—J. Nicklès: William Mitchell, 434.

Miscellaneous Bibliography.—Handy Book of Meteorology, by ALEXANDER BUCHAN: Annual of Scientific Discovery, by SAMUEL KNEELAND, 434.—First Principles of Chemical Philosophy, by J. P. COOKE: Outlines of Physiology, Human and Comparative, by JOHN MARSHALL: The Ornithological Collection of John Cassin, 435.—Catalogue of the Orthoptera of North America, described previous to 1867, by S. H. SCUDDER: Memoirs of the Peabody Academy of Science: Bulletin of the Essex Institute, 436.

Proceedings of Societies, etc., 436.
